CD206, p.216. Oswald's literature distribution. James Lawrence, Dolores Neeley, FNU Bridges, WDSU, Nick Plamisano

One of the things missing here is the fact that Lawrence had to have known Shaw well. This does explain why Palmisano was interviewed. My memo on him asks why. With all he says of Mrs. Neeley, in this report, long as it is, there is no reference to her going to lunch with the WDSU photographer. That is not consistent with his having been told to "hurry", if the instructions included getting the film back fast.

I wonder why none of the agents who interviewed the others interviewed Lawrence. It is also interesting to note that these pictures show people not interviewed, like the building superintendent, Bridges, and apparently are at an angle that included people other than Oswald; or, to put it another way, the camera may well have panned off of Oswald and picked up other people the FBI and the Commission ignored.

Is it not likely the superintendent might have had more interest than casual passersby in what went on at his building?

There may be data on p.218, which I do not have, that may bear on these comments. I'd like to see it.
